New features for Christmas Extravaganza 2010 lineup

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

An expanded lineup of volunteers gave the Nov. 28 Elk Point Christmas Extravaganza a jump start at the first planning meeting of the season, with many of the details assigned and work getting underway.

The Extravaganza committee is considering a passport format for their contest this year, with stamps given for each $10 spent, with filled passports to be deposited at a central location on or before Extravaganza night and shoppers welcome to fill as many passports and thus have multiple entries in the contest. Prizes and passport time frame has not yet been determined.

Students at the meeting showed considerable interest in assisting with activities for younger children, which would be offered in the late afternoon and would end just before the 7 p.m. parade. Arrangements have already been made for photos with Santa, which will again be located at the Seniors Recreation Centre. The craft sale at F. G. Miller High School will be held in conjunction with Extravaganza again this year, and F. G. Miller students will again be involved in selling 50-50 tickets and cleaning up the streets at the end of the evening.

The Visitor Information EcoCentre and Iron Horse Trail staging area are slated to be a big part of the action this year, with an outdoor skating rink near the gazebo and fire pit, with the loading zone for the horse-drawn wagon rides near the EcoCentre, which will hopefully be open that evening for tours and hot chocolate.

Plans are underway to decorate the EcoCentre with energy-efficient Christmas lights, and some of the Elk Point Co-op staff is volunteering their time to install Christmas lights purchased by downtown businesses prior to Extravaganza, in exchange for a donation to the chamber.

Local feedback on land use

County of St. Paul Division I Coun. Glen Ockerman (right) provided his input on land use in the Lower Athabasca Region at the 'Share the Vision' information session last Monday in Elk Point.

Public input gathered on land use issues

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Seven strategies for determining land use in Alberta's Lower Athabasca Region were outlined at last Monday's public input session in Elk Point, as the provincial government works toward a long-term vision and sustainable plan for northeast Alberta.

The Lower Athabasca Region is one of seven new land use areas in Alberta each of which will have a regional plan containing a profile of the region, plan context, regional vision statement, regional outcomes, objectives and goals, strategies, actions and approaches, and monitoring and reporting procedures.

A land-use secretariat has established a regional advisory council in each of the regions. Cumulative effects management will be used in each region to manage the effect of development on land, water and air. A strategy for conservation and stewardship on private and public lands will be developed.

A fifth strategy will see the promotion of efficient use of land to reduce the footprint of human activities on the landscape. An information, monitoring and knowledge system will be established to contribute to continuous improvement of land-use planning and decision-making. Aboriginal input will be included in land-use planning.

The Alberta Land Use Stewardship Act became law on Oct. 1 of last year and establishes the legislative foundation for the land-use framework, including regional planning. Regional plans, which must be evaluated every five years and reviewed every 10 years to adjust to changing circumstances, ensure that decisions consider the unique needs, challenges and advantage of each region.

Impact on landowners was considered in the development of the Act.

Visitors to the input session were invited to list their concerns and comments on a series of flip charts that accompanied the displays.

A vision for the region states that the region is "an exceptional mosaic of peoples, communities, forests, rivers, wetlands, lakes and grasslands that are cared for and respected... a vibrant, dynamic region that is a major driver of the Canadian economy, supported by strong, healthy, prosperous and safe communities," where "sustainable economic, social and environmental outcomes are balanced through the use of aboriginal, traditional and community knowledge, sound science, innovative thinking and accommodation of rights and interests of all Albertans."

Concerns regarding landowner rights and appropriation, that land taken up for roads and trails could set a precedent for more to occur and pros and cons of multi use corridors were among the comments on the vision, along with the comment that "Lakeland must be a region."

Recommendations for economic growth and development brought diverse comments, such as, "Conservation areas are good but different farmers have different ideas," "Industry needs to look for efficiencies in siting infrastructure – public interest versus cost to individual companies," "Think/plan before you act, consult with affected municipalities," and "Cooperation between stakeholders in regards to economic development."

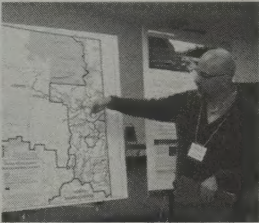

Land conservation objectives and recommendations for a number of conservation areas, all but two of them located north of the Cold Lake Air Weapons Range, and those two located immediately north and east of the existing Lakeland Provincial Park and Lakeland Recreation Area.

Regional air and water thresholds would regulate maximum allowable impacts and would require the development of robust environmental management frameworks and improved regional monitoring and reporting processes.

Human development considerations brought forth comments regarding conservation options for tourism development, centering on Lakeland country, and a need for effective management of recreational activities on crown land. The regional advisory council's recommendations for parks and protected areas, which make up three per cent of the region's land area, include building upon existing recreation and tourism areas, recognizing that the majority of these areas include lakes and sites with regional historical significance, including such unique areas as the Quarry of the Ancestors, Fort Chipewyan and the Richardson Backcountry. Leveraging Lakeland Country as an iconic recreation and tourism destination and providing a variety of recreation and tourism opportunities for local residents and visitors were seen as important factors, as was using parks and protected areas primarily for recreation and tourism, traditional uses and ecological conservation.

The advisory council feels that Lakeland Country has the potential to attract significant number of visitors from both within and outside the province, and that the tourism industry in this area should be emphasized and promoted.

Input on the advisory council's recommendations gathered at this and other sessions in the region will be considered when the Alberta government develops its draft plan for the Lower Athabasca Region. That draft will be presented in 2011 for additional feedback before a final regional plan is completed.

Alberta Environment personnel were on hand to explain the displays and to gather input on all aspects of the land use plan.

BEN DYCK

FOR REEVE

A New Style of Leadership

Would you hire a mechanic who said I might fix your car, but don't worry I am honest?

Or would you hire someone who knows what the problem is and how to fix it?

I am Ben Dyck and as Reeve:

- I will lower county tax rates.
- I will fix your roads properly and efficiently.
- I will listen to your needs and not make decisions behind closed doors.
- I will not build subdivisions with taxpayers' money.
- I will not cut service to residents.
- I will not have tax assessors come to your door without notice.

If you want someone who will seriously work for you vote Ben Dyck for Reeve.

Come out and meet with Ben to share your concerns and ask questions.
Meet and greets are being held at the following locations:

Cst. Adam Bullock demonstrates to F. G. Miller High School's Grade 8 students what happens to passengers during a vehicle rollover, using the RCMP's rollover simulator.

F. G. Miller students shown that seatbelts work

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Students at F. G. Miller High School may be a little more likely to fasten their seat belts, after watching last Thursday's demonstrations of the RCMP rollover simulator, and the accompanying video presentation on saving lives and preventing injuries through the use of seat belts.

The big difference between belted in and flying around the passenger compartment of a truck body spinning on its axis like a clothes dryer drum was demonstrated by Cst. Adam Bullock as he opened the door of the simulator at the end of the spin cycle. Belted in, the two mannequins appeared to be in relatively good shape, but when the procedure was repeated without seat belts, one of the floppy 'rollover victims' landed on the ground in a crumpled heap when he opened the door, while the second passenger had to be extricated from the back seat.

"Accidents," Bullock told the students, "happen without apparent cause and are unpreventable. What we often call accidents are really collisions, which are mostly due to human error and can usually be prevented."

Whether the collision is of the frontal, side, rear-end or rollover variety, passengers who remain in the engineered life space formed by the vehicle's body frame "should have enough room for survival, if you use your seatbelt," Bullock said. He noted that vehicles are "engineered to crush. The engine goes down and the steering column snaps off," leaving the passenger compartment intact. "And, if you're belted in, it will help you keep control of the vehicle."

The "three ways to die," Bullock said, are by being ejected from the vehicle, going through the windshield and by "becoming the projectile," which is often the case for an unbelted back seat passenger.

There are numerous myths about seatbelts, Bullock said. "People think, 'I'll only hurt myself,' but in fact, you're more likely to hurt others, if you lose control. They think, 'I'll be trapped if the vehicle catches fire or goes underwater,' but without a seatbelt, you are five times more likely to be knocked unconscious. If you're conscious, you can undo your seatbelt. And they think it's better to be thrown clear, but you're five times more likely to be killed without a seatbelt." He noted that an air bag is effective in frontal collisions, but does not help in side, rear or rollover collisions.

"If you don't care about yourself, others do. Wear it for your family," Bullock concluded.

Keep positive in campaign

In a world where so many election campaigns get down and dirty, it's time for a reminder to our candidates to stay positive.

In the same way that honey draws more flies than vinegar, a candidate will earn many more votes by telling the electors what he or she will do for them, than by listing all the reasons the voters should not vote for other candidates, no matter how tempting it is to point out the other candidates' flaws.

Strength is an admirable attribute, and one that is especially valuable for someone in a leadership role. Therefore it is strengths that we, the voters, should look for, rather than choosing a candidate who prefers to dwell on others' weaknesses.

Candidates, don't be shy about telling the electors why you are the person who can get the job done on town or county council or school board. Stay positive and so will the voters.

WAY BACK WHEN...

Tourism study, Bicentennial, Buck back

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF SEPT. 28 IN...

1985

Transport Minister Marvin Moore cut the ribbon held by County Reeve Robert Bouchard, MLA John Drobot and Mayor Ed Buck to officially open the $818,000 Elk Point Airport. A five-month study into "where tourists can go in the Lakeland and what they can do when they get there" got underway under the auspices of Travel Alberta.

1990

Hospital administrator Clem Johnson welcomed Dr. Barrie Pelland to Elk Point, where he planned to open a practice on Dec. 3 in the clinic formerly operated by Dr. Frank Estey. With 15 months to go, a committee was established to plan activities to commemorate the Bicentennial of Fort George and Buckingham House.

1995

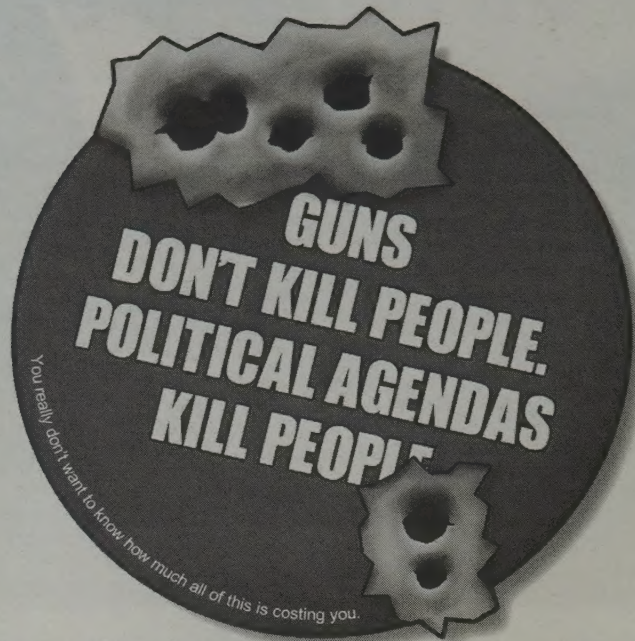

So much for retiring from public office - Ed Buck bowed to public pressure and filed his nomination papers, becoming mayor again by acclamation. The first Academic Standings Award from the new St. Paul Education Regional Division went to Renee Anderson, along with eight other awards presented to her mother on her behalf at F. G. Miller Awards Night.

2000

Anadarko Canada announced huge drilling and exploration programs for 2001-02, with capital expenditures of $280 million over four years, $80 million of that in 2001, involving up to 100 square miles of three-dimensional seismic surveys and drilling of up to 55 wells in the Kehewin area. Tanya Pankiw was named Best All-Around Student at F. G. Miller's awards night.

2005

Deborah Grey, who made history as the first Reform Party MP in Ottawa, read entertaining snippets from her book, "Never Retreat, Never Explain, never Apologize: My Life in Politics" at the Northern Lights Library System conference. Elk Point chamber of commerce rescheduled their Christmas Extravaganza to Dec. 2 to fit in better with paydays.

GUEST COLUMN

Now that our two mayor candidates are out and about and talking with people, we are having the opportunity to express our concerns. As it is with any politician, the question we are asking is: "When elected, will they remember what they promised and will they follow through?"

Each of us has two types of memory: short-term and long term. Short-term memory stores information for only a few seconds or a few minutes. Long-term memory, on the other hand, is the information that you subconsciously make an effort to retain. You remember this information because it's meaningful to you, or because you need it, or because it made an emotional impact.

Committing something to memory is a two-step process. The first is acquisition: the new information enters the brain. However, the information will only stay in the brain if you focus on it. If you don't concentrate on the information, it simply disappears. You do need to put effort into remembering. Otherwise, the brain can't tell the difference between what you don't want to remember (like the phone number for a classified ad) and what you do want to remember (the name of a person who made an impression on you). The second step is consolidation: the hippocampus, a structure deep in the brain, will retain the information. The first step to remembering something is actually learning it. Aaron Nelson, assistant professor at Harvard University and co-author of the Harvard medical School Guide to Achieving Optimal Memory, says that all people, even young people, most commonly forget things because they're not really paying attention. "They aren't absorbing the information in the first place," says Nelson. "For example, you can be reading a book and your mind is drifting. The text is going through your head, but your memory might be compromised by thinking about something or hearing the kids yelling in the background." If you really want to retain the information, "you have to guarantee up-front attention and focus," says Nelson. "Eliminate the possibility of distraction." Nelson suggests taking notes as you read, or outlining, which will help you strengthen the information as it enters your mind.

In regard to long-term memory, Nelson says there is a "use it or lose it" aspect when it comes to memory. "Because you haven't recollected the memory for a long period of time, it fades after time." The brain is naturally made so that memories that haven't been accessed for a long time get repressed, explains Nelson. Our brains would get overloaded with unimportant information if our memories didn't get "cleared out" every once in a while. So, if you need to remember the information, it is important to revisit the memories. "If you do that on a regular basis, it's going to stay there. If you put it away and don't look at it for a month, it's going to leave your memory."

All of this information on short and long-term memory is something for each of us to observe with the political candidates who take office. The basic question is: "Are they willing to listen to our concerns and therefore will they remember so that they can act upon our expressed concern?" At the same time, our opinion is one opinion and another opinion might be more right than our opinion. But that is democracy and what is important is that we all have a voice and it is nice to be heard. So really, this election campaigning time is a time we all can enjoy. Talk to the candidates. Check to see if they are listening and understanding what you are saying. Then, once these people are elected, check to see if they remembered what you said. It depends on their short and long term memory.

O.K., I know, one politician is not the whole Town Council. So it is easy to say that some were put in by acclamation so they don't have to campaign. But, we also need to be talking to these people as well. Do we really know if these people are willing to listen and understand our concerns. Will they put out concerns in their memories and respond accordingly? We need to check this out as well. A politician elected is one who represents the people. The job is not easy. So as we prepare for election time, let us not only become involved now, but let us continue to be involved. After all, short or long term memory can be recalled if we and they have decided it is important. It's the boost in action.

Mayoral candidates speak out on issues

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point's race for the mayor's chair will see Dick Millar taking on incumbent Parrish Tung for the leadership of the new council, where incumbents Bernice Capjack and Dwayne Yaremkevich and newcomers Eugene Buck and Ron Fraess were elected by acclamation.

Dick Millar

With his first three-year-term on town council coming to an end, Dick Millar feels his next step is to make the move up to the mayor's chair.

Millar feels that the most important issues facing the new council are to improve the appearance of Elk Point's downtown business core, to increase the community's tax base with additional residential or commercial development, to improve the inventory of serviced residential lots and to encourage the development of affordable housing, including seniors' housing. Seniors' housing would be one step toward "making the community more senior-friendly," another of Millar's goals, which he also feels could include designated parking for seniors in strategic locations in the downtown area.

Millar's background includes 20 years as a banker, 17 as a business owner and 10 as a mortgage broker, and he feels council "must improve our dialogue with the business community to create a business-friendly environment." He also feels the community "needs to be involved more in the decision-making process," and vows to "make myself available to all community groups and to listen and act upon their concerns."

"I am passionate about this community, and I care about its people," Millar emphasizes. "I want to make the town stronger and more attractive, 'the right place to be'."

During the past three years, Millar says the current council saw residential growth in the community, although "it was fairly stagnant this last year." He is pleased with the emphasis on economic development, which included the hiring of coordinator Bob Bezpalko and recreation coordinator Valerie Lazicki.

The community has also benefited from increased police presence since the arrival of RCMP Sgt. Brad Lazicki, and Millar says, "He and his staff have made our community a much safer place to live."

Parrish Tung

Parrish Tung is completing his second turn as Elk Point's mayor, following one term as councillor. Newly retired from his teaching career, he is now seeking a third term as mayor.

One of Elk Point's most urgent issues is "to get a secure water supply, 24/7," Tung says. "It's very important that we do this in conjunction with the town and County of St. Paul. St. Paul can supply us with water through a pipeline, for only 10 per cent of the project cost, a maximum $700,000. To upgrade our water treatment plant would cost about $1 million, and a water line and pump would cost $7 million. There's no guarantee on government funding for that, but even if they did pay 70 per cent, it could cost $3 to $4 million." The 24/7 water project is "coming close. I'm optimistic that it will go ahead next year."

Tung says the town will be debt-free in 2011. Without loan payments, the town "would have some financial flexibility. In six to nine years, we could get all the roads done." One "critical area" is the industrial area, where roads are "a bit of a disgrace."

He noted that on the 50th Ave. upgrade, the town made good use of grants, the $1.3 million project actually costing the town only $150,000. Tung says his basic belief is that the town should see a good return on investment, and that "Any decision council makes should benefit our residents."

The new fire hall, two Elementary School playgrounds and the joint operating grant are evidence of the "good relationship we have forged with the County of St. Paul. My definition of community is the whole area. We have to act together," Tung says.

Tung notes that the town has also been successful in attracting young professionals, including a doctor, a dentist and a lawyer, to Elk Point.

Election details

Elk Point voters will go to the polls on Monday, Oct. 18, between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. An advance poll will be held Wednesday, Oct. 13 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Both polls will be held at town council chambers.

Both polls will also include a vote for school board trustee.

Watch upcoming issues of the Elk Point Review for the profiles of school board trustee candidates and of those who are seeking the positions of County of St. Paul Reeve and the County's Division 2 councillor.

In the midst of harvest season, the St. Paul Agricultural Society will be hosting a two day Farm Safety and Awareness Seminar at the St. Paul Ag Corral from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sept 30 and Oct. 1.

The seminar is held in partnership with the agricultural societies of Elk Point, Rich Lake, Lac Bellevue, St. Lina, and the County of St. Paul, with the help of a $2,500 grant from the provincial government of Alberta.

Diane Belland, the secretary treasurer for St. Paul's Ag Society, said she was surprised to receive the grant. "(The provincial government) said every agricultural society gets the $2,500 grant, and we are to promote farm safety and education. That's what we did."

Timmy Quinney Memorial Volleyball Tournament

J. A. Williams High School's JAWS had a great weekend at the Timmy Quinney Memorial Senior High Volleyball Tournament in Elk Point, taking home the first place trophy with a hard-fought final victory over Ashmont Falcons.

Timmy Quinney was a Grade 12 student and volleyball enthusiast at F. G. Miller High School, who died in a vehicle crash early in the 2007 volleyball season, and his devotion to the sport has been remembered with the memorial tournament each year since then.

St. Paul Regional JV, Andrew and Two Hills Tigers also took part in the girls' side of the tournament, with players from Marwayne, Andrew and Two Hills also playing in the boys's side.

NOTICE OF HEARING SUBDIVISION APPLICATION APPEAL

As per Section 686(3) of the Municipal Government Act

An appeal has been filed against a decision of the Subdivision Authority of the County of St. Paul No. 19 on:

Subdivision Application: File No. 10-N-736

Legal Description: Pt NW 23-57-5-W4th

Proposal: Subdivide a 10.46 ha agricultural parcel

Reasons for Appeal: The proposed subdivision will not conform to the County of St. Paul's Land Use Bylaw which requires a minimum parcel size for agricultural use be 25 ha. The area applied for is fragmented by Road Plan 802-2336. The applicant feels that this is a natural fragmentation and thus wishes to appeal.

The Subdivision and Development Appeal Board of the County of St. Paul No. 19 will be holding a hearing to consider the appeal at the following place and time:

Place: County Council Chambers
County Administration Building
5015-49 Avenue
St. Paul, Alberta T0A 3A4

Date: Wednesday, October 6, 2010
Time: 10:00 a.m.

The appellant(s), the applicant(s), the land owner(s) and person(s) who claim to be affected by the decision or the subdivision may make a submission to the Subdivision and Development Appeal Board for it to consider when it makes its decision on the appeal.

To make a submission, you may do so in writing to the Secretary of the Subdivision and Development Appeal Board before the hearing takes place, or you may appear at the hearing and ask to speak.

For further information on the appeal, or to view the appeal file, contact the Secretary of the Subdivision and Development Appeal Board at the County Administration Building, 5015-49 Avenue, St. Paul, during regular business hours.

Visitation down from '09 at Fort George and Buckingham House

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Statistics for the 2010 season at Fort George and Buckingham House provincial historic site show a drop in visitation of 20.4 per cent, with only 1,574 visitors between May 15 and Sept. 6, compared to 1,952 for the same period last year, the Friends of the Forts learned last week as they resumed meetings following the summer break.

Revenue, however, was up from last year, according to facility supervisor Marianne Mack, who says the increase is "possibly because we had more school groups this year." She also noted that the site's staff reported having more visitors during the week than on weekends, which is unusual compared to other years.

County of St. Paul Division 2 Coun. Tom Kurek, who represents the county at Friends meetings, said visitation at county-operated campgrounds was also down this year, no doubt due to the cool, wet summer.

The weather was especially cool and wet for the Forts' first major event of the year, when for the first time ever, snow fell on the Riverland Adventure Challenge at the end of May. Better cooperation from the weatherman brought out a good crowd to the Saskatoon Festival, but it was cool and cloudy for the Forts des Prairies Jamboree in late August, resulting in a smaller than usual attendance.

The Friends have already set the dates for two of the three major events in 2011, with the Riverland Challenge going May 18 and the Jamboree on Aug. 28, and will decide the date of the Saskatoon Festival at their Oct. 26 meeting.

THANK YOU

Thank You

BENDER, Josef

We would like to thank Dr. Oyeboode, the nurses, staff and Home Care for the special care for Josef Bender.

Many thanks to Father Zamora and Father Ambrose for the funeral mass, friends for your support, Paul for the eulogy and the pallbearers.

Special thanks to Yewchin's Funeral Chapel for the personalized service and the Royal Purple for the wonderful meal served.

Ultrasound now available

By JANANI WHITFIELD
Review Contributor

St. Paul will offer ultrasound services in the St. Therese Health Centre now Alberta Health Services' year-long search for a technologist has come to an end.

"We have been continuously recruiting, (but) it is a difficult to recruit position," said Stephanie Johnston, communications advisor with AHS, noting that it can be hard to hire positions in rural areas. Over the past year, patients have been traveling to places such as Edmonton or Bonnyville for ultrasounds. But AHS has now hired an ultrasound technologist with nearly 20 years of experience to offer general ultrasound services to patients in the local area.

Carol Ann MacNeil, who was formerly the manager of diagnostic imaging in the City of Iqaluit, started her position as St. Paul's ultrasound technologist on Sept. 20, said Johnston.

Area agricultural societies partner in farm safety seminar

Belland continued by saying that every farmer should practice more safety, a fact that was underscored by a farming accident that occurred early last week. Raymond Como, an 82-year-old farmer from Morinville, got stuck in the engine compartment of his combine for an agonizing 21 hours, before he was finally found and rescued.

"(The seminar) is also for the kids to grow up with farm safety," said Belland, adding, "I think it's very important that everybody knows what can happen, and we're going to have demonstrations of power, dug-outs and everything else."

A presentation named, "Safety on the Workplace" will be given by Ag Environmental Services, Agland, ALTA Gas Utilities, ATCO Electric, Caouette & Sons Implements, Lakeland Adventure Tours, St. Paul Ambulance Service, St. Paul Fire Department, St. Paul RCMP, and TLC Kennels.

Additionally, ten displays of interactive farm safety demo will be given during the two-day seminar, according to a press release from the Ag. Society e-mailed to the Journal.

St. Paul Education Regional Division #1 and County of St. Paul FCSS will also be arranging school tours to provide students with a Safety Up experience.

"The thing we're aiming at is that we all safety-up, and save a life," said Charlotte Hedin, a volunteer at the St. Paul Ag. Society. "Younger children can be educated at a young age. The older children and adults (can benefit) from the presenters ... on large equipment or dug-outs."

"Children can learn how old they should be when they are doing agricultural tasks," she said, noting that teaching them about safety at a young age means it will hopefully be "something they will practice through their lives, and share with other people."

For more information on the upcoming seminar, contact Charlotte Hedin at (780)-645-4373.

Weather warms as arena ice goes in

It never fails. Every year, as soon as we fire up the plant at the arena, the weather warms up outside. Yes, that noise you hear outside the back of the A. G. Ross Arena is the plant running, we are making ice and the plant is working steady to keep it cool inside. Today the guys from the town are coming to paint on the white ice, as they have for the past two years and Thursday we are looking for a crew of volunteers to put on the lines. If all goes well, and we don't have any hiccups, the kids will be skating by the weekend. Last week we spent some time down in southern Ontario, part of the week at the in laws in Picton, and part of the week was at my mother's in Dundas. Driving between Picton and Dundas you use the hwy 401 going right through Toronto, and at one point, Donna said, "Do you realize there's 18 lanes of traffic right here, nine lanes going each way?" "Fortunately I grew up there and know most of the major highways, but it's still a little intimidating every time you go back for a visit. It's almost as crazy as driving in Mexico. At least if you miss you turn in Mexico, there's always a return, no return in Toronto!!!!

If you remember last spring Dundas was named Hockeyville. A lot of volunteers in Dundas worked really hard to make it happen, and that's not too different than the volunteers we have right here who have worked hard the last month to get our arena ready. Thanks to you all!

Tonight the Ottawa Senators and the Buffalo Sabres are playing in the old Dundas barn where we used to hang out on a Saturday night as kids. The whole town will be rocking, especially at the century and half old Collins Hotel where us boys used to go the odd time too, on a Saturday night, just to hang out and have a few!

And now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week. "I learn teaching from teachers. I learn golf from golfers. I learn winning from coaches." Last week's answer to. "Over coaching is the worst thing you can do to a player."

Heinsburg Community School raises flag on a new school year

Frog Lake elder and Armed Forces veteran Bill Peyachew officiated a Heinsburg Community School's flag raising ceremony on Friday. The flag raising was followed by a pipe ceremony and a feast enjoyed by students, staff and honored guests from Heinsburg and surrounding communities, as the school celebrated the beginning of the new school year.

You go to a hospital to get better. It's vital we keep it that way.

Every room, every surface and every piece of equipment in a hospital can be a breeding ground for disease. People on staff take that seriously and do the best job of eliminating those dangers. Misguided plans to save money could come with a real cost to health and safety.
